Prerequisite: At least one 300-level course or equivalent. Cross-listed: 01:420:508
What does it mean for women to “come to writing” in French from outside the Hexagon? What strategies (language, irony, humor, madness, cultural imagination etc.) do these post-colonial writers and artists from Guadeloupe, Mauritius, Algeria, Morocco and Senegal use to “speak” to us from a position of silence and invisibility? In this course we will examine issues of gender, race and the importance of orality, history and myth in the construction of new hybrid identities through women’s voices in African and Caribbean writings and art exhibits.
